

GIVE BABIES FRESH AIR.

Boston Little Ones Sleep on Roof and Balconies.

Putting the baby to sleep in a box on top of the flat roof of a modern skyscraper apartment house, or in the iron balcony far above the sidewalk, or even on the broad window seat of the upper story, at the very edge of the precipitous height, is the newest method of fresh air training which is developing among the wealthy and aristocratic families of the Back Bay and Brookline, Boston.

The treatment has become so popular that along almost any street in the exclusive section of the city one may look up to the upper stories of the houses, especially in the apartment houses, and see a box which, in a poorer quarter of the city, would be taken for a window garden.

And so it is, but it is a garden for the little bud of the family.

A TEXAS CHATELAINE CHARM.

Novelty from Paris Likely to Become a Fad.

To take home with him as a souvenir of New York, a Texas man recently found nothing so attractive in the whole metropolis as a revolver, which he purchased at a jeweler's and for which he paid $50. It might seem to be taking coals to Newcastle to take a revolver to the big Southern state, but the Texan said that the best woman-shot in his part of the country had never seen a revolver like this. It was a tiny one, barely two inches long, made entirely of gold, but with all the qualities of a regular shooting iron. Genuine cartridges accompany it, and it makes a decided pop and genuine flash of flame when it is fired. It is a novelty from Paris, and is put up in dainty little leather-covered, velvet-lined cases, like any other article of jewelry. It is, or can be worn, as an ornament, and its possibilities are many. Mounted as a hatpin, a tiny chain attached to the trigger is pulled to set it off and suggest further hostilities to the ubiquitous masher; or dangling from a chateleine, it is used to intimidate the guilty man who buries his face in the paper while the pretty woman before him lings to a strap in the street car.

Change in Gulf Stream.

Seafaring men say the gulf stream has increased its speed and incoming ships are several hours ahead of schedule time. Those bound south are delayed.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney, Jr., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
